The Brownstown Battery Assembly Plant, is proud to be a landfill-free facility providing batteries for the Chevy Volt and Opel Ampera line of vehicles.

Green Highlights and Community Involvement:

- Brownstown Battery Assembly Plant is a landfill-free facility, meaning all by-products that come from ongoing, day-to-day manufacturing-related operations at the facility are recycled.
- Brownstown Battery Assembly received certification for a Monarch Waystation, in 2011. This waystation provides important plants that conserve the continuation of the Monarch migration in North America.
- The plant recycled more than 161 tons of materials in 2012.
- Volunteers have taken part in the Friends of Detroit River annual cleanup days in both 2011 and 2012. These activities help beautify the Detroit River and its banks in anticipation of the warmer season.
- Brownstown Battery Plant employees volunteer with local schools and recreation centers to help build bat and wood duck boxes made from re-purposed Volt battery covers. The battery cover re-purpose mission was also part of an Eagle Scout project that assisted in the building and placement of bird, bat and wildlife boxes in the local community and throughout Metro Detroit, with the goal to enhance wildlife and provide a means for shelter.
- The plant celebrates Earth Day annually with various activities that may include visits to local schools, T-shirt awards, hosting plant recycling events, displaying Earth Day information, sponsoring giveaways and coordinating Team Gardening events.
- Employees donated 949 hours to a wide variety of local charities through participating in TeamGM Cares over 3 weeks.
- New energy monitoring equipment was installed on Feb 21st.
